Relaxsan quashes rumours

It has come to Relaxsan's attention that there are rumours circulating amongst customers and agents that the company is no longer trading.

Relaxsan would like to reassure its customers and retailers that this rumour is completely unfounded and misleading, and that they should be wary of any misrepresentation of the brand and its products. It is well known that Relaxsan no longer distributes through General Traders, which went into administration at the beginning of 2010.

If customers have any queries or doubts about the misconduct of any sales agents, or regarding any products and packaging received, they are advised to contact the Relaxsan team immediately.

Relaxsan has confirmed that it will take all appropriate legal steps and procedures to protect its heritage and its brands. Relaxsan is gathering witness statements from customers and other employees, and will also use official investigators to assemble any evidence of misconduct.
